The Route 20 corridor is best known for Madison-Bouckville Antique Week, New York State's largest outdoor antique event, which draws more than 2,000 dealers and vendors each August. In November, it shows its cozier side. The Holiday Open House wraps up the region's antiquing season and gives local dealers a chance to thank loyal shoppers and welcome new ones.

> "The Holiday Open House is the Route 20 antiquing corridor at its most welcoming," said Kaytlynn Lynch, Visit Madison County Executive Director. "It's a chance to find a unique gift with a story behind it, meet the vendors who make Madison and Bouckville a year-round collector's destination, and turn a day of shopping into a full getaway."

What to Expect

- Festive shops: Participating antique shops and co-ops along Route 20 dressed for the season.

- Gifts with history: Vintage ornaments, glassware, primitives, furniture, collectibles, and home décor.
- Seasonal treats: Hot chocolate and holiday refreshments at select shops.
- Easy to explore: Shops sit along a stretch of Route 20 between the hamlets of Madison and Bouckville, so visitors can park, browse, and shop at their own pace.

Make a Weekend of It

Bouckville sits about 45 minutes southeast of Syracuse along the Route 20 Scenic Byway, which runs the width of Madison County from Cazenovia at its western gateway to Bouckville in the east.

Lynch and the Visit Madison County Team encourage visitors to make a weekend of the experience by pairing the Holiday Open House with a farm-to-table dinner in Hamilton or Cazenovia, a stop at a local craft brewery, cidery, or winery, and an overnight stay at one of the county's cozy inns or bed and breakfasts.
